

Shasta County Probation Compliance Officer

The Probation Compliance Officer works with other probation officers and officers within the local law enforcement community to maintain consistent and regular personal contact with offenders on supervision and those on Supervised Own Recognizance (SOR). The goal is to reinforce accountability by focusing on those offenders who disregard their supervision and treatment requirements, but also to reinforce participation in treatment and positive behavior of those under the department's supervision.

The Compliance Officer is in the field every day making contact with offenders ranging from home visits, address verifications, searches, arrests on new law violations and warrants. Home visits are necessary to ensure the person is living at the address they provide to their probation officer, as well as addressing any issues the person may be having. For those who are not in compliance with the requirements of supervision, this Officer contacts them to increase their compliance and to hold them accountable. The Compliance Officer assists with global positioning system issues on those wearing the monitors in the community. Residence verifications are also conducted for the court on incoming cases to verify the person lives at the address provided.

The Compliance Officer is a valuable member of the Shasta County Probation Department and is the contact person for all joint operations with local law enforcement. The Compliance Officer participates in monthly operations with the Shasta County Sheriff's Department and leads high risk contacts within the Shasta County Probation Department.
